i. How can the problem of attaching low value to household work by women be ckled? 1
ii. Which important ideal is mentioned in the above paragraph? 1
iii. How is government trying to overcome gender inequality? 2

21. Chola temples often became the nuclei of settlements which grew around them. These were centres of craft production. Temples were also endowed with land by rulers as well as by others. The produce of this land went into maintaining all the specialists who worked at the temple and very often lived near it – priests, garland makers, cooks, sweepers, musicians, dancers, etc. In other words, temples were not only places of worship; they were the centres of economic, social and cultural life.

i. What do you mean by the term nuclei of settlement? 1
ii. How did chola temples become centres of social and economic life? 2
iii. Who provided land for building temples? 1
